Voters to decide unit system issue

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Hancock voters may have to decide as early as June if they want the unit system of government in the county.

The Mississippi State Legislature passed a local and private bill Thursday which would put the question of the unit system to the voters on the date set for the Mississippi congressional primary, June 3.

However Beat Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro said Saturday he was sure the election would be held in November.

According to Perniciaro the resolution passed by the board of supervisors indicated that the issue be placed on the November ballot.

Sponsor of the bill State Representative Walter James Phillips said the drafters of the bill must have set the June date.

He added that the date was probably set for June because so many other issues were being decided at that time.

Phillips said he got the resolution for the local and private bill Wednesday and everything was in a rush just to get it passed before the end of the session.

"I honestly didn't know the supervisors wanted it in the November election," he said.

Perniciaro said he planned to talk to the other supervisors Tuesday at their next regular meeting about delaying the vote until the November election.

According to Phillips to change the date the bill would have to go back to the legislature which may not be in session again until next January.

Supervisor President A. A. Kellar said if the election is going to be in June the board had to get several issues settled because there are variations of the unit system.

"I am glad the issue is going to be decided by the people," Kellar added.

"I am all for a change if it is for the betterment of the county but not if it is just to have a change," he said.

Beat Five Supervisor James Travirca said he had always wanted the issue to be left up to the voters.

He added that he had requested the board to pass a resolution for the local and private bill nearly three months ago.

"I don't want to put the unit

Crisis hotline available for farmers

A toll-free telephone hotline is now available at Mississippi State University for farmers experiencing financial difficulty.

The Mississippi Farm Crisis Hotline, which began operating April 7, is being conducted through the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Agricultural Economics Department.

The hotline is in response to the financial problems many farmers in Mississippi are facing, said Dr. Bob Williams, head of the Extension Agricultural Economics Department.

"We feel like this will be an important service to farmers since so many of them are experiencing financial difficulty," Williams said.

Of Mississippi's 48,000 farmers, about 25 percent are estimated to be in extreme financial difficulty. Another 50 percent could face problems without favorable changes in the farm outlook.

The hotline, 1-800-654-6237, is open weekdays from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. There is no charge for the call.

Farmers who call will get direct assistance from Extension specialists on financial and economic questions. Referral help is available for farmers with questions about alternative employment and legal matters.

Williams said Extension specialists also will be available for follow-up visits to individual farms for more in-depth analysis of financial and economic problems.

Funding for the hotline is made available from the Extension Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, in Washington, D.C.

Wastewater district to continue negotiations

By DENA BISNETTE

The Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District board plans to continue negotiating with an engineering firm concerning disputed costs and proposed contract changes on two parts of a five-part sewerage improvement project.

After a three-hour discussion on the matter Wednesday night, the board decided to continue negotiations with Reynolds, Smith and Hills, a Jacksonville, Fla., firm, at a special meeting April 23.

Before that meeting, Board Attorney Lucien Gex plans to consult State Bureau of Pollution Control and US Environmental Protection Agency officials concerning whether or not the disputed costs are reasonable.

In addition, District Administrator Ethel Schott will contact other cities and wastewater districts.

The board members are not only disputing costs but are questioning whether the type of contract being offered by the firm is cost-effective and appropriate to the project.

The design and post-design costs on the first two segments of the project, which will upgrade existing sewerage treatment facilities in the district, were altered when parts of a third segment were moved to later phases of the project.

In addition, some recalculations were required when Bureau of Pollution Control changed some of its requirements. The changes increased the costs of the project by about 68 percent, according to engineering firm representatives William Ver Eecke and David Herndon, who proposed that a cost-plus, fixed-fee type of contract will now be more appropriate than the original lump sum contract.

Board members John Longo Jr., Victor Franckiewicz Jr. and A.A. Kellar opposed the cost-plus, fixed-fee contract because it provides the engineering firm with no incentives to cut costs.

Ver Eecke disagreed, contending that the cost-cutting incentive is an increased profit when a project can be completed at a lower-than-anticipated cost.

Action was delayed until Gex and Schott can report to the board on their findings concerning the contract types.

However, the board agreed to authorize the engineering firm to file an application for an Environmental Protection Agency grant for the project in time for a May 1 deadline.

The grant application is unaffected by whether or not the matter of the engineering contract has been settled.

Action on the disputed costs, including increases of about $429,000, was also delayed until the April 23 meeting.

Herndon, however, said he had checked on some of the charges that Longo had disputed at the previous meeting.

Longo had contended that some of the design costs being charged to Waveland did not apply to the city because the work was actually part of the Bay St. Louis share of the project.

Herndon said he was still compiling specific figures on those charges Wednesday.

In other business, the board approved a contract with Ray Eaton and Associates of Jackson for engineering services related to the final segment of the project.

Segment V consists of development of a collections system for four county subdivisions, including Shoreline Estates, also known as Garden Isles; part of Shoreline Park; Jourdan River Estates and Jourdan River Isles.

The county board of supervisors voted last week to approve the use of $97,500 in seawall tax funds for Segment V costs due during the current fiscal year, Kellar said.

Mississippi Forestry Commission

Forestry Leaders Say Timber Future Is Still Bright

"We've been saying it for years...tree growing is a good solid, long-term investment," declares Freddie Jordan, chief of the Mississippi Forestry Commission's Forest Resource Management Division.

"Wood markets tend to run up and down in cycles of several years, but if you look at the long-term picture out there when trees being planted today and in recent years begin to come of saleable size you have to feel real good about the prospects," he added.

Jordan was reflecting on the outlook for forestry in the face of all the gloom and doom economic talk that has permeated the state scene in recent weeks.

"Forestry investments have a long run record of staying 3-5 percentage points ahead of inflation," Jordan said. "Do you know of any other commodity with that kind of consistent record for delivery?"

Jordan said in spite of any budget constraints the Forestry Commission will be going all out to keep delivering a high level of services to the state's timber growers.

He explained that the Forest Resource Development Act of 1974 is looking more and more like one of the wisest statutes ever passed by the state's lawmakers. "It's providing us with the vital and necessary funding to keep our forest improvement efforts going at a good clip in spite of the fiscal squeeze...and that's good news for Mississippi's future!"

According to Jordan the commission led all other state forestry agencies in the South last year in reforesting idle or underproductive acres.

Jim Bright, who recently assumed duty as the commission's Chief of Forest Protection upon the retirement of long-time Chief Tom Hardage, was equally upbeat about the commission's capacity to protect the state's timber resources.

Bright attributed a lot of the current year's reasonably good fire occurrence record to continually improving cooperation from landowners and the general public...aided by some fire danger-dampening, timely winter rains. He said the 1985-86 fire loss record was still comparing well with the state's five-year average as February began to fade. Only 3,706 fires burning 38,641 acres had been reported for the fiscal year through February 24, 1986.

"We feel like people have really been awakening to the expanded economic value and environmental importance of our timberland in recent years," Bright stated.

"People with good common sense just don't burn up money and jobs—regardless of whether they are, or are not, in great supply," he concluded.

Area students attend conductor's conference

Carl Major of Waveland, Craig Adam and Lana Kay Jones, both of Bay St. Louis, recently attended the 13th annual Southern Instrumental Conductors Conference at the University of Southern Mississippi.

They represented Bay Senior High School at the event.

The conference included featured bands from Hattiesburg, Vicksburg and Starkville along with bands from Atlanta, Ga., Mobile, Ala. and Columbia, S.C.

Highlights of the conference included: performances by the USM Symphonic Band, Symphonic Wind Ensemble and the USM Jazz Lab Band I; clinics for junior high band directors and total band programs; discussions on job dissatisfaction and the attrition of teachers into other jobs; and recitals by star performers.

DEPRESSION

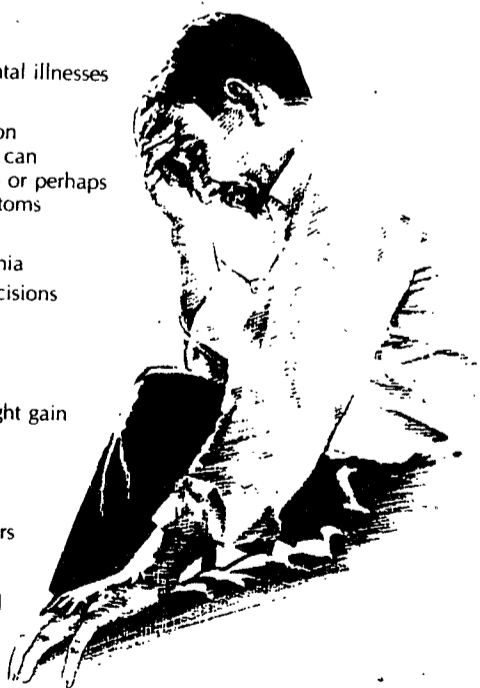

One of the most common of mental illnesses and one of the most treatable.

When does a temporary depression become a clinical depression? How can you tell when someone you love — or perhaps yourself — needs help? These symptoms are easy to recognize:

- Sleeping too much — or insomnia
- Confusion, inability to make decisions
- Loss of energy, fatigue
- Guilt feelings, lack of self-worth
- Lack of interest in work or play
- Loss of weight or excessive weight gain

Quotables by CUEVAS

The cool snap on Thursday caught everyone by surprise.

Several folks mentioned they went to bed on Wednesday night with their air conditioners on and awakened on Thursday morning with house temperatures warmer than outside.

The cool snap is short lived and in a few weeks many of us will be looking forward to cooler weather.

We do know there have been a lot of gardens planted this year, and many are bragging about how nice their vegetables are growing.

This has been a good Spring season, only a little on the dry side.

On a trip to Jackson on Thursday, I noted the many Dogwood trees in bloom alongside Highways 49 and 59.

We know the Magnolia is the state flower, but it seems there are many more Dogwoods in the state.

The Hancock County Chapter of The March of Dimes will be trying to raise some funds with a 'Jail and Bail' scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, April 23 and 24.

Organizers indicate this will be a real fun event and many folks should be involved in the activities.

The Jail will be supplied by Coast Coca-Cola Bottling Company and will be installed in Jitney Jungle Store, MarkeTown Shopping Center.

SBA

Focus on Small Business

U.S. Small Business Administration

By Charles A. Gillis
Manager
Gulfport Branch Office

Thinking about starting your own small business? You've got plenty of company.

Statistics show that more and more men and women are going into business for themselves. For example, there were a record 668,904 new business incorporations last year, than double the total of a decade ago. Almost all new incorporations represent small businesses.

By the way, new businesses started by women these days are outpacing by about three to one those started by men. Fresh statistics also show that there are a record 15.2 million nonfarm businesses in the country today. According to size standards set by the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA), 99 percent are considered small. Thus the estimate that small firms now total 15 million, another record.

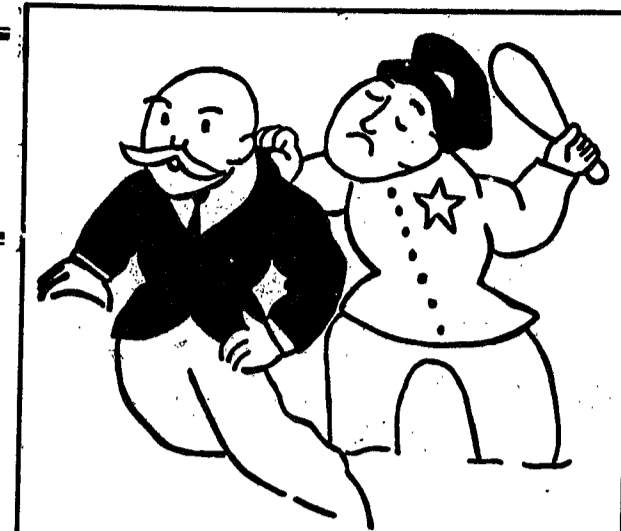

The rush to start one's own company is undoubtedly being fueled by the nation's economic prosperity and the fact that existing small firms are doing quite well. In 1985, the income of sole proprietorships—which represent almost 11 million of the 15 million small businesses—rose by a hefty 12.3 percent. Small retailers also did very well last year. Overall, retail sales expanded by 7 percent (the nation's gross national product rose 2.1 percent). But between September 1984 and September 1985, retail companies which owned 10 or fewer outlets saw their sales rise by 13.2 percent; retailers with more outlets saw a sales increase of only 4.6 percent. Of course, starting a small business remains risky. SBA economists say that about one of every two new firms will fail within the first four years of operation and that 8 out of 10 will fail within the first decade. But such gloomy figures obviously haven't daunted those men and women determined to work for themselves. SBA has a number of excellent publications which outline steps to consider before starting a business and which offer advice on what kind of business is best for you. To obtain these publications, contact the SBA office at One Hancock Plaza, Suite 1001, Gulfport, MS 39501-7758, or by calling 863-4449.

Industrial Development Revenue Bond Program open

The Certified Development Company of Mississippi, Inc. (CDCM)—a nonprofit organization staffed by the Mississippi Department of Economic Development—is initiating its 1986 Industrial Development Revenue Bond Program for eligible small businesses.

The CDCM is authorized by the Mississippi Legislature as a statewide issuer of tax-exempt industrial revenue bonds to assist small businesses in creating jobs and promoting economic growth. The 1986 program represents the second bond program for the CDCM. The 1985 program was a success with over $20 million in capital raised for small businesses in the state.

JAIL & BAIL—Jail and Bail is a fundraising activity involving the 'Arrest' and 'Jailing' of local citizens to be conducted Wednesday and Thursday, April 23 and 24 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. This is your chance to get together with family members, friends and co-workers to 'Arrest' your husband, wife, boss, friends or enemies for a fee of $10. The 'Arrestees' will never know (unless you want them to) who sent an officer of the Police or Sheriff's Department to pick them up. The 'Arrestee' will be taken to a 'jail' set up in the Jitney Jungle at MarkeTown Shopping Center in Bay St. Louis in an official car (handcuffed if necessary). A 'Judge' will pronounce sentence upon him (you have the pleasure of naming the charges) and set his bail. The 'Arrestee' is then dressed in a striped jail coat and hat and placed in our 'jail,' where telephones are available for him to call friends to help raise bail to get him out of jail. 'Bail' is in the form of March of Dimes contributions. No 'arrestee' will be kept in 'jail' for more than one hour (unless pledges keep him or her there). For more information or to schedule your victim's 'arrest,' call 467-9048.

Dear Sir:

Recently I underwent major surgery at HGH. During my three-week stay there, I learned that this little hospital is big on talent.

The doctors are the best in their various fields barring none.

The care I received from the nursing staff was excellent. A more dedicated group of professionals I have never seen anywhere.

Housekeeping personnel were courteous and efficient. These people seemed, always, anxious to assist in any way.

HGH is a hospital staffed by professionals who discharge their duties with complete authority, yet are able to show compassion. They care.

Affirmative action and The Thirteenth Amendment

By Kenneth M. Holland
Assistant Professor
University of Vermont

Editor's Note: One of the most hotly disputed constitutional questions of our time has been that of affirmative action. Affirmative action programs are intended to overcome the effects of past racial discrimination on its victims and their descendants. Yet these programs strike many as unfair—unfairly punishing innocent whites, and giving unfair preferences to members of minority groups. Do these preferences really help those they are intended to benefit? In this article, Professor Holland argues that the policy of granting preferences based on race only perpetuates the inequalities it is designed to overcome.

The Thirteenth Amendment, ratified in December 1865, declares that "slavery...shall (not) exist within the United States." Since by the time of its ratification, the Emancipation Proclamation and the Union Army had liberated all blacks held as slaves within the former Confederacy, one could conclude that the amendment was a gratuity, with no real significance then and certainly not now.

Such is not the case, however, for in accordance with section 2 of the amendment, which authorizes "Congress...to enforce this article by appropriate legislation," the Congress in 1866 enacted a civil rights bill.

The law secured to blacks the same rights as whites to acquire property, to go and come at pleasure, to enforce rights in the courts, to make contracts and to inherit and dispose of property.

But how could a prohibition on slavery be the basis of equal civil rights? In the course of reviewing the constitutionality of the Civil Rights Act of 1866, the Supreme Court in the Civil Rights Cases (1883) provided this answer:

"It is assumed that the power vested in Congress, to enforce the article by appropriate legislation, clothes Congress with power to pass all laws necessary and proper for abolishing all badges and incidents of slavery in the United States."

The Thirteenth Amendment forbids racial discrimination in the rights of citizenship, then, because such discrimination was one of the features, or "badges," of the slave system.

Given that the amendment has contemporary civil rights relevance, is there a relationship between the Thirteenth Amendment and the controversy surrounding the policy of granting racial preference to blacks in school admissions and hiring?

Indeed there is. Because affirmative action, in the perception of many, rests upon an assumption of Negro inferiority, racial quotas infringe upon the right of blacks under the Thirteenth Amendment to be free from the badges and incidents of slavery.

The fact that slavery was confined in the American colonies and states to African blacks is evidence that beliefs in racial inferiority were at the foundation of the South's "peculiar institution."

Racial quotas also perpetuate the myth of Negro inferiority.

"Reverse discrimination" negatively affects the attitude of whites toward blacks, the image of blacks among whites, and the self-image of blacks. White perception of the Negro is the key to the race problem, but affirmative action is a barrier to the formation of a favorable disposition among whites.

"There is perhaps no device more destructive to the notion of equality," warns Justice Rehnquist, "than...the quota."

The policy of racial preference reinforces stereotypes. It helps form in the minds of whites the image of blacks as children or those less gifted and, thus, in need of special advantages.

In the words of Thomas Sowell, a prominent black economist:

"What all the arguments and campaigns for quotas are really saying, loud and clear, is that black people just don't have it, and that they will have to be given something in order to have something. The devastating impact of this message on black people—particularly black young people—will outweigh any few extra jobs that may result from this strategy."

Today, the successful black man or woman can never be assured that recognition is a product of merit.

Sowell goes on to warn that: Those black people who are already competent, and who could be instrumental in producing more competence among this rising generation, will be completely undermined as black becomes synonymous—in the minds of black and white alike—with incompetence, and black achievement becomes synonymous with charity and payoffs.

At the back of the black attorney's or physician's mind will always be the suspicion that he or she is an "affirmative action" doctor or lawyer. Whites, sharing these doubts, may avoid the more qualified professional simply because he is black.

Justice William O. Douglas said that affirmative action rests on the "assumption...that Blacks or Browns cannot make it on their individual merit," leaving upon its intended beneficiaries "a stamp of inferiority."

Justice Lewis Powell regards racial quotas as unconstitutional because they "only reinforce common stereotypes holding that certain groups are unable to achieve success without special protection based on a factor having no relationship to individual worth."

Affirmative action programs are motivated by a desire to repair three hundred years of injustice. They have, however, consequences that are contrary to the letter and spirit of the Thirteenth Amendment, which remains a vital provision of our Constitution.

News From The Governor's Office

Gov. Bill Allain

SETTING PRIORITIES GOOD IDEA FOR GOVERNMENT

As the 1986 Legislative session is winding down, a remarkable occurrence has unraveled in these final weeks.

Facing an unprecedented budget crisis, the Governor's Office and the State Legislature worked through a process that, hopefully, will lay the groundwork for establishing state government priorities for the future.

Following Legislative refusal to place all state money into the general fund and the reallocating it to aid suffering state budgets, I addressed the Legislature with certain recommendations regarding programs that could be terminated, reduced or altered in funding. After this speech, members of the House and members of the Senate developed lists of possible programs that would be treated in a different manner than in the past.

While few could agree on the items that should be changed, the mere fact that such a process occurred is historic.

For the first time, many legislators familiarized themselves with programs that in the past had been considered untouchable. Many had their budgets scrutinized and even cut in some cases.

Although the budget crisis is far from solved and the finalized list worked out by the House and Senate left much to be desired, the overriding consideration becomes the fact that today we have a better educated legislature in terms of budget process a better educated legislature in terms of budget process and priorities and we have a public that now realizes that the state can no longer afford to fund everything.

Hopefully, the struggles of the 1986 Legislature will lead us in the months between the adjournment of this session and the convening of the 1987 session to a closer scrutiny of the state budget, to an agreeable and workable list of programs that should be cut, and to another list of essential programs that should be funded first.

Many people may not realize the significance of the conversations, debates, and compromises in the Legislature in these final weeks. And many people may be critical because the budget crisis was not solved. But a historic first step was taken toward justifying every penny we spend of taxpayer money.

In the future, hopefully, no program will receive a free ticket, no program will be funded without scrutiny, and programs will be funded based on services to the people.

IN CONGRESS

By Congressman Trent Lott

THE BUDGET CHALLENGE

For 24 of the last 25 years, Congress has spent more each year than the government received in revenues. Each year the debt has grown, and now the sheer size of the deficit could hurt the future health of the economy.

If we keep that trend going, by 1990 we will spend 41 percent of all individual income tax receipts on paying the interest of the federal debt. For that reason, Congress last year created the law known as the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill that will eliminate deficit spending in the next five years.

To get the deficit down over those years, we need to reduce our spending rate just a little each year. Congress has set a deficit goal of $144 billion for next year. Therefore, we must change our ways to avoid the $180 billion deficit current spending will produce.

To listen to all the doomsayers, you would think that to cut the deficit we would have to close the federal government. Of course, that is nonsense. We just need to use our heads and make some rational choices.

If we cut wasteful spending, make a $40 billion payment of slowing the growth of the deficit and tighten our belts in other areas, we can avoid any increases in taxes.

Since Congress acted in 1981 to cut marginal income tax rates, tax revenues, rather than falling as critics of the action predicted, have increased by 23 percent. Domestic spending has increased by twice that amount. For example, the amount of money spent on student loans since 1981 has increased by 57 percent.

Defense comprised 26 percent of the federal budget in 1985 while 45 percent of the budget in 1985 was spent on social welfare programs.

I am convinced that by cutting the deficit and not raising taxes, we will keep our economy going strong. Inflation will remain low, interest rates will continue to drop, our trade prospects will continue to improve, our farm economy can grow through greater foreign sales and more people should be able to obtain jobs.

And once we make changes in our spending habits, I think more good things will happen in the economy. As more people get jobs, they start paying taxes. As farmers sell more abroad, they too will pay taxes. As inflation stays down, we spend less on interest for the deficit.

Once we take a few steps toward cutting the deficit, we will see balancing the budget get easier. Because revenues will be growing and spending will be leveling out, we will keep our country moving without borrowing from our children and grandchildren and without raising taxes.

Matters of Health

Q: I notice that sometimes when I take meat out of the freezer, my fingers change color and become numb. My doctor says that I have Raynaud's disease. Can you explain this condition?

A: Raynaud's phenomenon which was first identified by Maurice Raynaud in 1862, is triggered by exposure to cold temperatures. The condition affects the blood vessels in the fingers and sometimes in the toes. Initial episodes of the condition may involve only one or two fingertips, but subsequent attacks can involve an entire finger or all the fingers.

Raynaud's symptoms occur in three stages, though some sufferers may not experience the earliest stage.

In the first stage, when the artery goes into a spasm, the finger, or fingers, turn white as the blood flow to the capillaries is impeded.

In the second stage, the capillaries dilate and are flooded with deoxygenated blood, causing the finger to turn blue.

Cold and numbness often accompany these phases of Raynaud's phenomenon.

The third stage occurs when the hand is warmed. The warmed artery relaxes and a greatly increased blood flow causes the finger to turn red. A throbbing sensation in the finger often accompanies this phase. Gradually, the color of the finger returns to normal.

While the symptoms of Raynaud's phenomenon are frequently the same, it may be caused for different reasons.

Generally speaking, the condition is classified in two categories - the idiopathic variety, which has no known cause and is called Raynaud's disease; or the secondary variety, which is caused by any of a number of other diseases that range from vascular disorders to certain blood diseases.

Sometimes trauma caused by vibrating hand tools or the use of drugs to treat angina or migraines can be a factor in the development of Raynaud's phenomenon.

More than 50 percent of patients with Raynaud's phenomenon have Raynaud's disease. The patients are usually female. Women are affected about five times more often than men and the disease usually appears between the ages of 20 and 40.

In general, patients with Raynaud's disease appear to have the least serious form of Raynaud's phenomenon. The number of attacks can range from one or two per winter to one to two per day. In 16 percent of all cases, the condition of the disease improves. Thickening and tightening of the finger tissue, which appears in 10 percent of Raynaud's patients, can take as long as 20 years to develop.

For those whose Raynaud's phenomenon symptoms are caused by another disease, the symptoms are sometimes more severe. These patients may suffer as many as eight attacks in one day and frequently develop a stiffening of the joints in their fingers and skin ulcerations.

However, treatment of the disease can help alleviate the Raynaud's phenomenon symptoms.

There is no single treatment for Raynaud's phenomenon that is satisfactory for all patients. As the causes become clearer, it is possible to tailor treatment to meet the patients' individual needs.

Those who suffer only mild and infrequent episodes of Raynaud's phenomenon should dress warmly and avoid unnecessary exposure to the cold.

In addition to wearing gloves, patients should protect the rest of their body from cold with warm clothing. The forehead is also a source of heat loss and should be covered.

Moving to a warmer climate is not always helpful, as even small drops in environmental temperature as removing meat from the freezer can precipitate an attack. Also, use of tobacco should be curtailed, as nicotine decreases blood flow.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, as all Americans of reasons and conscience unanimously agree, this nation's most precious asset is that which we and, for that matter, all of humanity worldwide, most zealously guard and cherish beyond all else - the living extensions of ourselves and our country's primary entitlement to the future - our children; and

WHEREAS, while we understandably rain down upon these our irreplaceable children, all of our love and affection, patience and forbearance, and hopes, and aspirations, there are others who, to our bewilderment, inflict grave injury, both physical and psychological, upon their offspring; and

WHEREAS, this societal malignancy called child abuse and neglect respects no racial, class, or geographic boundary, and, in fact, has reached epidemic proportions in nearly all regions of our nation; and

WHEREAS, the arrest and ultimate elimination of this damaging and sometimes deadly disease cannot be achieved without the full and total support of every responsible and compassionate American;

NOW, THEREFORE, We the governing authorities of the City of Bay St. Louis, claim that the entire month of April, 1986, shall be observed as Child Abuse Prevention Month, and I urge all citizens to utilize this period to learn to better understand, recognize, and respond to this previous problem;

AND, FURTHER, We commend the Exchange Club of Hancock County for providing such information to our people and urge full public support of their successful effort, in concert with all other Exchange Clubs in America and their Child Abuse Prevention Foundation, to establish a nationwide network of Child Abuse Prevention Centers where abusing parents and their children are at last finding new hope and effective help.

Merit pay should be based on student performance

By Michael Waldrop
Assistant Superintendent
Senatobia

(The following article resulted from a grant from the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions expressed are those of the author and not of either organization.)

One of the hottest topics among educators in Mississippi is merit pay. What makes this such a hot topic is that merit pay is closely tied to teacher evaluation. In fact, the public is demanding that teachers be held accountable for student achievement and that incompetent teachers be dismissed.

However, the teacher evaluation systems found in most schools today are inadequate. Teachers complain about principal favoritism and subjective data when it comes to teacher evaluation.

Their arguments have merit. Most principals are not adequately trained to evaluate teachers nor do many good teacher evaluation procedures exist.

Teacher evaluation systems seldom hit at the heart of the matter - whether or not students are learning.

Current teacher evaluation systems center on teacher behavior rather than student achievement. Most methods assume that if a teacher has certain qualities (enthusiasm, sense of humor) that she or he is a good teacher. This thinking is faulty.

I once knew a teacher whom the community perceived as one of the district's worse teachers. She did not communicate effectively with parents and usually had a sour look on her face. However, her students consistently outscored other students at the same grade level.

The point is this: the best way to measure teacher effectiveness is by student achievement.

In Mississippi the first steps have been taken. Mississippi teachers are equipped with the necessary tools for valid meaningful evaluations, based on student achievement.

If we are to know whether a student is learning we must first know exactly what it is we want him to know.

Mandates in Mississippi, through the Accountability and Instructional Management (A.I.M.) law, have assured that each school has clearly defined curriculum and that all teachers teach from a plan that carefully states the learning objectives for all students, activities to be used in the instruction, and type of evaluation used to determine whether the student actually mastered the material.

Principals are required to document that teachers are following their A.I.M. plans. The teachers decide how they are going to teach the objectives, but the curriculum is a school wide policy. Teachers must follow it.

The Mississippi Education Reform Act expanded on the idea of accountability by including a section in the law on Basic Skills Assessment and performance based accreditation. Students must meet basic skills requirements in order for the school to be accredited.

This means that student achievement is being spotlighted in every school in Mississippi. Those schools that don't measure up to minimum standards could be phased out.

Teachers are now looking at which students (and groups of students) achieved and which ones did not. Staff development activities are tied tightly to teaching by objectives and reteaching students that fail to master material on the first go around.

This is what the public wants - higher student achievement. So, let's evaluate teachers on how well their students achieve and work with teachers to improve specific areas in their teaching methods or skills. The ground work has been laid.

Phillips seeking junior college accreditation

The governing board of Phillips College of Gulfport reports Phillips College of Gulfport has changed its name to Phillips Junior College of the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

This new name is an outgrowth of recent approval of Phillips College as a candidate for full accreditation as a Level 1 institution by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, a regional accrediting agency from Atlanta, Ga.

This new accreditation level, coupled with the previous national accreditation status gained by Phillips in 1976 from the Accrediting Commission of the Association of Independent Colleges and Schools from Washington, D.C., brings about the name change for the college.

"Phillips Junior College is a name which better emphasizes our commitment to quality, two-year career programs," said Ann H. Gibson, director of the college.

"It shows that we are in the business of getting our students successfully into the job market in the shortest period of time possible, but with a degree which will be meaningful to them both in the job market or in seeking a four-year degree after graduation," she said.

According to Gibson, the new name also indicates that Phillips Junior College has a "coastwide constituency."

"We have many students come to Phillips from all along the Gulf Coast," she said, "and we want our name to show that we welcome them all."

Phillips Junior College is the parent campus of the nationwide Phillips College system. Presently, the Phillips College system has 21 campuses throughout the country with more than 10,000 students enrolled nationwide.

The Gulf Coast campus has approximately 575 students and emphasizes career education in fields such as electronics, computer data processing, secretarial, medical assisting, legal assisting, accounting, business management, and travel/tourism.

PRC approves administration, faculty and staff for 86-87

Pearl River College's Board of Trustees voted Tuesday to put all vocational-technical instructors on an 11 month contract for the 1986-87 school year.

The Board also approved President Marvin R. White's recommendation to reduce those contracts to 10 months for the 1987-88 school year.

President White explained to the Board that Pearl River and all other junior colleges across the state were facing very tough economic times and that something must be done now in preparation for dwindling state allocations.

"Junior college allocations from the state were cut three million dollars this year," Dr. White said. "And we expect a cut of three more million next year."

When the 1985-86 school year began, the Mississippi junior colleges had 60 million dollars in hand. After two drastic cuts this year three million has reduced that beginning figure to 57 million and the most expected for the next year is 54 million dollars.

"We may even receive less than that," Dr. White said. "We were able to absorb the cuts this year but there is no way we can continue with these type cuts without taking action."

Dr. White told the Board that everything possible will be done to keep from cutting salaries. But there is always that possibility.

Two PRC members were not recommended for employment for 1986-87 and one nursing vacancy will not be filled unless that program's enrollment is up.

The Board approved the remaining administration, faculty and staff for employment for next year.

The two instructors not recommended for next year are in the Individualized Developmental Systems program which is funded by the state's Vocational-Special Services.

The Special Services Division is funded heavily through Federal grants and these funds are expected to be lost for next year.

"We are not in the position to make up the difference," said Dr. White. "The two instructors may have jobs next year but at this time we cannot recommend contracts to them because we just don't know how much support we will get from the state in the programs," Dr. White said.

The Pearl River Board also approved Mike Nelson, the college's head football coach, as Athletic Director. All intercollegiate sports will now be under his direction.

President White has been handling the Athletic Director's responsibilities for the past three years.

Kathryn Moody, chairperson of the Presidential Search Committee, reported that the 29 applicants for president had been narrowed to 10 and that interviews were in progress.

The Presidential Search Committee will submit three of the 10 names to the overall Board Tuesday, March 11, and at that time the regular March meeting will be recessed until Wednesday morning at which time those three will be interviewed by the entire 16 member group.

The person to succeed Dr. White as president when he retires June 30 will be named Wednesday afternoon, March 12.

ETV Brief

Mississippi ETV's award-winning documentary, "The Last Confederates" will be rebroadcast at 5 p.m. Saturday, April 19, on the statewide network.

In the documentary, filmed on location in Brazil, Brazilian citizens who are direct descendants of American Confederates tell how their defeated forefathers fled the Civil War in hopes of a better life for themselves and their families - ironically the same ambition of many immigrants who have chosen the United States as their adopted country.

In the city of Americana, these descendants of the Confederate emigrants tell stories of their ancestors and their struggles to settle in a new land. They talk about their parents, grandparents and great-grandparents and their feelings about the United States. Even though many have never been there, today, three generations later, they still feel a strange link to the United States, and their "American-ness" is evident in their lives, from their customs to their American accents.

Joseph Campanella narrates the program, which includes original music by Luigi Zaninelli.

"The Last Confederates" has won a silver plaque from the Chicago International Film Festival and a bronze award from the International Film and Television Festival of New York.

MANAGING OVERSEEDED PASTURES

Proper management is needed on overseeded and sod-seeded bahiagrass and bermudagrass pastures to utilize the grazing produced by ryegrass or ryegrass-clover plantings and not reduce early summer production of these permanent sods. According to Bill McKie, Area Agronomy Specialist.

Overseeded and sod-seeded pastures are growing well considering the very dry weather conditions in late March. When these fields begin to get ahead of the cattle grazing, add more cattle so that overseeded areas are not allowed to grow up if the area kept grazed close, the bahiagrass and bermudagrass will grow along with the ryegrass.

It is a good idea to concentrate cattle on overseeded areas until they are grazed out. Where possible, save hay or silage from fields planted on a prepared seedbed. If hay or silage must be produced from overseeded pastures, cut as early as possible to reduce competition to the permanent sod.

The high cost of growing winter pasture dictates that all forage produced be used as grazing or stored feed.

For high quality ryegrass hay, harvest when first seedheads appear and store under a shed if possible. Ryegrass harvested no later than the dough stage of the oldest seedheads makes good quality hay. The quality of ryegrass for hay drops rapidly as it matures.

Concentrating cattle to graze out overseeded areas until the ryegrass fades out in May, will allow summer grass on other pastures not overseeded to become well established. Overseeded fields can be clipped, the manure spread and area rested as cattle are rotated on to the ungrazed pastures. All surplus growth from bermudagrass and bahiagrass should be harvested for hay if it is relatively weed free. The first growth from perennial grasses in the spring is the highest quality forage produced by these plants during the season.

On pastures where clovers are growing in combination with overseeded ryegrass or alone, heavy grazing pressure should be continued to maintain a grass-clover balance.

When you allow clovers to grow up to produce a seed crop, the permanent summer grass is often severely set back and a lot of quality forage can be lost. Before allowing clovers to grow up and produce seed, consider the value of this forage for grazing or hay against the cost of replanting. Where reseeding is desired, the grazing pressure on crimson and ball clover should be reduced in mid to late April.

Subclover can be grazed heavily throughout spring as it will seed best when closely grazed. Graze Yuchi arrowleaf into late May and Meechee arrowleaf into June where reseeding is desired. To allow for reseeding on all annual clovers except sub, the cattle will need to be removed or grazing pressure greatly reduced between flowering and seed production.

The red clover varieties being planted are short term perennials and often need some additional seed added the following fall after original seeding as the stand will not survive late summer drought most years. Red clover will volunteer from seed if old plants are allowed to seed the second year.

Graze red clovers and ryegrass until the ryegrass fades out, then pull cattle off and allow regrowth for grazing or hay.

We cannot continue the luxury of a scattergun approach to pasture fertilization. The soil testing of permanent pastures, then fertilizing according to the specific needs of the soil for the forage crop being grown, is the surest way a profit can be expected from each dollar spent on fertilizer.

Along with proper fertilization and timely rotation, weeds must be controlled by spraying and/or clipping. We cannot afford to fertilize pastures if weeds are not controlled. Research has shown that most pasture weeds contain twice the nitrogen, twice the phosphorus and three times the potassium as desirable forages. Many of these common weeds in pastures have the potential for producing nitrate poisoning and other toxicity problems plus off flavors in meat and milk.

Pastures require the same management as row crops if they are to produce a profit.

The abolition of the LaBauve trustee

By David San-ling
History

University of Mississippi
(The following article resulted from a grant from the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions expressed are those of the author and not of either organization.)

In 1879 Felix LaBauve, a businessman from DeSoto County, bequeathed $21,411 to the University of Mississippi to provide scholarships for male orphans from DeSoto County. To administer the fund and to oversee the awards, a special trustee was added to the University's fourteen member Board of Trustees.

At the time the LaBauve Trustee was established, there were three state supported institutions of higher learning and each of them (the University of Mississippi, Mississippi A&M, and Alcorn A&M) was governed by a separate board of trustees.

When Mississippi State College for Women was founded in 1884 a fourth separate board of trustees was established.

In 1910 those four separate boards were consolidated into one eight member board of trustees. The law establishing the consolidated board provided that a special board member, in addition to the regular eight members, be appointed from DeSoto County for a four year term to superintend the LaBauve fund.

The 1910 statute did not delineate the duties of the LaBauve Trustee nor restrict his voting to matters pertaining exclusively to the University of Mississippi.

By 1932 the number of institutions of higher learning had increased to six, with the addition of Mississippi Southern and Delta State. Each of the two new colleges had its own separate board of trustees. When the three existing boards of trustees were consolidated in 1932 the LaBauve Trustee was again continued.

However, the 1932 statute provided that the LaBauve Trustee "shall have a vote only in matters pertaining to the University." This limitation on the voting rights of the LaBauve Trustee was also included in the constitutional amendment creating the Board of Trustees of Institutions of Higher Learning and in the 1944 statute implementing that constitutional amendment.

Although the LaBauve funds have long since been exhausted, the legislature appropriates approximately $1,420 annually to the University to provide a scholarship in Felix LaBauve's name.

During the 1960s and 1970s the governance of higher education in Mississippi became an increasingly complex process and it was difficult if not impossible to single out those "matters pertaining (only) to the University (of Mississippi)." Gradually the LaBauve Trustee found himself voting on virtually all propositions before the board.

As the governance of higher education increased in complexity, the rivalry for the board's favor among the institutions it governed increased in intensity.

It was inevitable that the LaBauve Trustee would become an issue in that rivalry and that supporters of the other seven institutions of higher learning would question the fairness of one institution having a special board member designated to vote on matters of interest to that institution.

For many years officials and supporters of the other seven universities did little more than complain about the LaBauve Trustee. But a decision by the board on April 28, 1977, prompted Professor Peyton Williams of Mississippi State University to file a lawsuit challenging the legality of the LaBauve Trustee.

The issue that prompted the lawsuit was a 7-6 vote to award the University of Mississippi and Delta State University $400,000 above their regular allocations. The $400,000 was subtracted from the funds that were allocated to the other institutions. The LaBauve Trustee voted in favor of the special allocation.

Williams et al asked the Mississippi Supreme Court to abolish the LaBauve Trustee or at least to order the trustee to restrict his vote to matters that pertain only to the University.

ETV Brief

MOZART OPERA

"Live from the Met" presents the Metropolitan Opera's new production of Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro" at 8 p.m. Wednesday, April 23, on Mississippi ETV. The opera was videotaped during a live performance at the Met December 14, 1985.

The cast features Carol Vaness, Kathleen Battle, Frederica von Stade, Ruggero Raimondi and Thomas Allen.

The production is subtitled in English.

In 1983 the Mississippi Supreme Court ruled against the plaintiffs. The high court ruled that the LaBauve position was created by the constitution and that only a constitutional amendment could abolish the position.

Furthermore, the court ruled that the governance of the eight institutions was of such an intricate and interconnecting process that it would be impractical to restrict the trustee from voting on the broader issues before the board.

Since that decision the matter has hardly rested and it is likely that a constitutional amendment to abolish the position will be introduced in the 1986 legislative session. Support for the abolition of the LaBauve Trustee has surfaced from unexpected sources.

Dr. Verner Smith Holmes, who served on the board of trustees twenty-four years, was recently quoted in his hometown newspaper as favoring the discontinuation of the special trustee.

The distinguished surgeon was quoted as saying that the University of Mississippi would perhaps "be better off without the appearance of having its own board member."

Constitutional revision and reform is an issue that has been almost constantly before the public over the last three or four years. The issues of gubernatorial succession and the abolition of the LaBauve Trustee are issues that will not "go away" and the 1986 legislature will likely have to deal with them one way or the other.

system on my people if they don't want it but I do look forward to being able to get all the facts," he said. Travirca also remembered the resolution calling for the issue to be on the November ballot.

Perniciaro said he wanted more details on the system and how it will benefit the county.

"I believe we will find that it will cost the county more money under the system because of the additional employees that will have to be hired," he said.

"I think we have got to go to the unit system eventually and I believe the supervisors would find it in their best interest although some are reluctant at this time," said Senator Gene Taylor.

With the unit the county government would be more like the city government, with the supervisors being the a position similar to a councilman, Taylor said.

"Under the unit system the supervisors would make the policy decisions but have an administrator to see the job carried out rather than having to get involved in all the day to day items," he added.

Commenting on the June 3 date, Taylor said it was "mighty quick" but those in favor of the unit system would have to get the information out to the public to get it passed.

Another issue the public will be voting on in the same election is an amendment to the ethics statute which would allow government officials to do business with their own governmental entity, he said.

Taylor said this amendment was passed over his objection and he felt it his duty to inform the public so the amendment could be stopped.

This amendment would allow too many opportunities for wrong doing from government officials from the local level to the top state officials, he said.

Taylor said at this time the ethics statute strictly prohibits this kind of business.

For example, this would allow an official to vote for the appropriation of funds to buy a truck for the highway department and then sell it to them, he said.

"The people are being given an opportunity to make very important decisions about how their government is run," he said.

FARM EQUIPMENT
"Farmweek" reporter Artis Ford will examine the health of farm equipment manufacturers and dealers in Mississippi in a program to air Monday, April 21, at 7:30 p.m. on Mississippi ETV.

With many of their fellow competitors already out of business because of the farming financial crisis, these manufacturers and dealers are trying to outlast the poor agricultural economy by developing new products and new markets. "Farmweek" will explore their present status and what they contribute to the state's economy.

In the second of its three-part series on home gardening, "Farmweek" will show some of the best methods for irrigating gardens and preventing waste of water.

Also included on the program will be current farm prices, market analyses, local and national agriculture news, feature reports, a calendar of upcoming farm-related events, specific advice for farmers and weather forecasts for the coming week.

Five Mississippi, Louisiana livestock dealers charged with slow pay

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has charged five livestock dealers in Mississippi and Louisiana with slow payment for livestock purchased at auction markets in the two states.

The respondents are: Ross Cattle Co., Inc., of Rt. 1, Terry, Miss., and its owner, William W. Ross, of Jackson; Robert L. Klempeter, doing business as Robert L. Klempeter Cattle Co., at Baton Rouge, La.; John Mousley Yates, doing business as John Yates Cattle Co., at Rt. 4, Franklinton, La.; Benny Mason

Vine, Jr., doing business as Mason Vine Cattle Co., at Centerville, Miss.; and Lee M. Johnson and Lewis T. McCoy, doing business as Big Spring Cattle, at Picayune, Miss.

A USDA official said each of the dealers promptly wrote livestock payment checks to the markets but withheld actual mailing for several days.

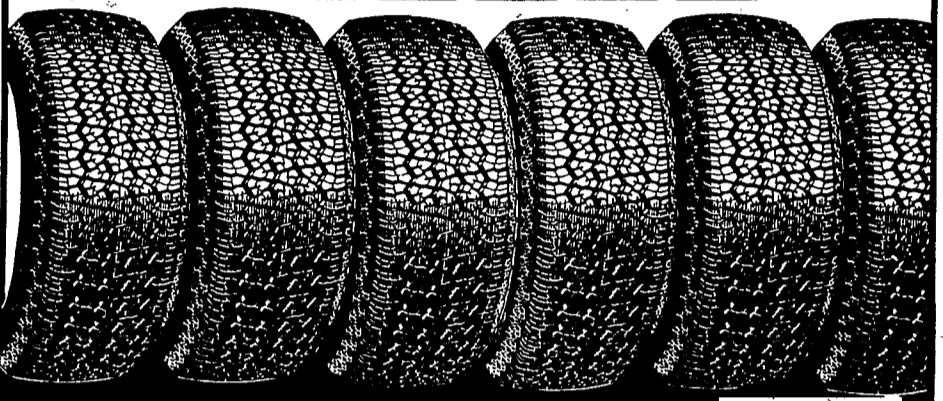

B. H. (Bill) Jones, head of USDA's Packers' and Stockyards Administration, said this resulted in the markets actually receiving payment one, two or even three weeks late.

Each of the respondents has a right to a hearing on the federal administrative charges filed by USDA under authority of the Packers and Stockyards (P&S) Act.

If the charges are proven, they will be placed under a cease and desist order, similar to a permanent injunction. Their registration to do business could also be suspended and they could be ordered to pay a civil penalty.

SECOND ANNUAL—Offering a preview of The Coast Episcopal Schools PTO benefit Jazz luncheon slated for April 20 are, from left, Truett Haire, Gulfport photographer; Mrs. Jerry Coleman of Biloxi, Mrs.

James Hourin of Diamondhead, Walter Chamberlain of Bay St. Louis, Denby Garrison and Mrs. Paul Westervelt Jr., both of Pass Christian.

Home tour, jazz lunch to highlight school benefit event

Coast Episcopal Schools Parent Teacher Organization will sponsor its annual Home Tour with Jazz and Lunch Sunday, April 20, on Wisteria Avenue in Pass Christian.

"Sunday on Wisteria" will feature live jazz music by Walter Chamberlain and the Crescent City Sternwheelers during the tour hours of noon to 4 p.m.

Ticket donations of $20 per person entitle the holder to a tour of four Pass Christian homes and lunch. For reservations call 452-7954 or 255-1203.

In case of rain, "Sunday on Wisteria" will be held Sunday, April 27.

The Beebop Boutique will feature handpainted hats and baskets, personalized beach toys and books provided by the Book Boat of Pass Christian.

Vignetted photographs by photographer Truett Haire of Gulfport will be offered as a memento of the day.

Mrs. A. M. Dantzler of Pass Christian is the honorary chairman of

"Sunday on Wisteria."

She is a long time supporter of Coast Episcopal Schools, having established the A. M. Dantzler Science Fund in memory of her husband.

Mrs. Dantzler said the event is a chance to relive the past with a garden party in the style of those held long ago at "Ossian - Hall."

Although Ossian - Hall burned in 1950, the site remains famous through the silent movie "Coming Out of the Kitchen" which was filmed on this location in 1927 and starred Margaret Clark.

Today, this area, known as Beechurst, has many homes. The four which will be open for viewing are those of Dr. and Mrs. George Byrne, 106 Wisteria; Mr. and Mrs. Denby Garrison, 105 Wisteria; Mr. and Mrs. C. Randall Jones Jr., 11 Wisteria; and Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Northrop Jr., 1213 East Beach Blvd.

Wisteria is located one block west of Esby Avenue in Pass Christian. Parking is available on Japonica or on Second Sts.

Bay Little Theatre to feature lobby art exhibit during play

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre will exhibit the works of two new artists during the run of "God's Favorite," the Neil Simon comedy slated for April 17, 18 and 19 at the playhouse on Boardman Avenue.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ferrante will exhibit her works in acrylics and Bill Bailey will display his pen and ink and watercolors.

Mrs. Ferrante's subject matters include owls, animals and nautical scenes.

She has been working under the instruction of Professor James Mathuis of Gulf Coast Junior College.

The artist has previously exhibited her work in the Ocean Springs Art Association Show, Edgewater Mall Art Show, Gulf Coast Junior College show and for the Biloxi Art Association.

Mrs. Ferrante resides with her husband in the Lakeshore area during the winter months. They return to Florence, Mass. for the summer.

Mr. Bailey, the assistant manager of the Bay St. Louis Pizza Hut, has been painting in watercolors for the past five years.

He began his art study with Gulf Coast artist Ken Matthews.

The artist worked with the competitive theatre group doing "The Sea Horse."

It was during the group's travel to Florida for the Southeastern Theatre Conference that Bailey was inspired with the focal point of his exhibit, "The City Gates of St. Augustine."

Bailey, his wife Lisa and newborn son William reside in Pass Christian.

"It's very exciting for the theatre to exhibit not only local acting talents, but the works of area artists. It's a positive reinforcement of the arts in our area. It's the theatre's way to show support for these artists and to encourage more local artists to exhibit," said Mike Cuevas, president of the theatre.

Carol Young, producer of the 40th season opening play "God's Favorite," is responsible for putting the exhibit together.

Tickets for "God's Favorite" may be reserved by calling 467-8432 between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. beginning Monday.

A limited number of season tickets are still available and will be sold through the April 17, 18 and 19 run of the play. Tickets may be available at the door.

The theatre opens at 7:45 p.m. with curtain time at 8:15 p.m. each evening.

The junior colleges were represented by four-member teams who were quizzed in basic areas of science, social science, humanities, professional programs, letters and the fine and performing arts. Representing the Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College Jefferson Davis campus were, from left, advisor Alma E. Shull of Pass Christian, Suzanne Blenvenue and Suzanne Blenvenue of Biloxi, Dorothy Byrd of Biloxi and Margaret Caruso of Waveland.

Eye physicians offer help to 271 elderly

The Mississippi Eye Care Project Helpline, the medical program to help provide eye care to the elderly, has received 271 calls in its first two weeks of operation.

Of the callers, 137 elderly Mississippi residents—four of whom have no insurance—have been referred to volunteer ophthalmologists for eye care. Other callers have received free information about eye care.

James E. Hall, MD, president of the Mississippi Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Association, has encouraged US citizens and legal residents age 65 and older to call the toll-free Helpline, 1-800-222-EYES, if they think they have medical eye problems but do not have an eye physician.

Disadvantaged elderly are eligible for medical eye care at no out-of-pocket cost.

The Mississippi helpline is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Other states will be opening at two-week intervals until July 21, when the Helpline will be operating throughout the country.

The program—supported by voluntary donations from ophthalmologists and by contributions from corporations associated with the eye care profession—is sponsored by the Foundation of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and state ophthalmology societies across the US.

The American Academy of Ophthalmology is the world's largest association of eye physicians and surgeons, with nearly 14,000 members. Ophthalmologists provide comprehensive eye exams, prescribe corrective lenses and diagnose and treat eye disease.

Diamondhead Bridge Club winners listed

Diamondhead Bridge Club winners in its April 7 Handicap include: Mary Hoppert and Pat Stafford, first; Thomas Golding and Betty Lou Hickman, second; and Betty Kennedy and Nan Hadden, third.

The open duplicate club welcomes all newcomers.

The game is played each Monday at the Diamondhead Community Center beginning at 10 a.m. For information, call 255-2613.

Safety tips for spring gardening

(Presented as a public service by the Mississippi State Medical Association and this newspaper.)

The home gardeners are at it again. Thousands of Mississippi householders are back at the annual battle with crab grass and insects in the perennial effort to add a touch of natural color and beauty to the southern scene.

The Mississippi State Medical Association recommends gardening as good therapy and good exercise for almost everyone. It is ordinarily a safe and sane hobby, but gardening entails some hazards to health and safety, most of which can be avoided.

—If you have done nothing more strenuous than sit by the fire most of the winter, take it easy for the first few weekends of gardening. Give your muscles a chance to regain strength gradually.

—Gardening often brings cuts and scratches from twigs, thorns and sharp tools. Wash the scratch with soap and water and apply an adhesive bandage. Let it bleed a little to wash out impurities. Deeper cuts require medical attention. Be sure your tetanus boosters are up to date.

—Power tools, particularly power mowers, are standard equipment for the modern home gardener. They save many an aching back, but they are sometimes dangerous. Study the instructions that come with the mower and follow the safety precautions. If in doubt, ask a mechanic about the hazards of power tools.

—Insect sprays and powders, plus poisons that kill weeds, are useful adjuncts of gardening. These, also, have inherent hazards if improperly or carelessly used. Once again, read the directions, especially the warnings.

—Bees, wasps and spiders are out for the spring season, too, and now and then one of them may sting you. For most of us, a sting is painful and causes temporary swelling, but it isn't serious. If you are allergic to insect stings, ask your doctor about desensitizing injections.

THIRD BIRTHDAY—Brandi Nicole Benson, daughter of Jerry and Cheryl Benson of Bay St. Louis celebrated her third birthday March 18 with a Cabbage Patch theme party. Hancock General Hospital Auxiliary

Hancock General Hospital Auxiliary met April 3 in the board room of the hospital. The meeting was opened by Edna Klempeter, president. Minutes of the last meeting were read by Ina Piazza. Selma George gave the treasurer's report.

The final payment of a $7,500 pledge by the auxiliary to the new hospital's building fund was made.

Many plans are being formulated by the auxiliary for needed assistance now and at the new hospital. Some of the services provided are tending call lights from the nurses station; information desk in the hospital lobby; passing meal trays; helping patients who need assistance in eating and collecting TV payments.

Meetings will be held throughout the summer, the first Thursday of each month at 10 a.m. at the hospital. Persons of the community interested in becoming members of the auxiliary are invited to attend. For information, call Mrs. A. S. Klempeter at 467-7976.

Mrs. Jan Jones, new director of nursing, was introduced to the members. She recently moved from Atlanta.

Meeting was adjourned at 11 a.m. and coffee was served to the members.

Friendship Oak Chapter DAR

The third birthday anniversary of the Friendship Oak Chapter National Society Daughters of the American Revolution was observed on Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Nunez (Joe) Pilet when members and friends gathered for a festive celebration.

Included on the program was a slide-lecture presentation entitled 'Famous Trees of Mississippi' given through the courtesy of the Hancock County Forestry Commission by David Watts. Later in the afternoon Watts gave a walking tour of the grounds and demonstrated how the approximate age of trees can be determined through tree boring procedures. He also explained how to identify several species of pine trees and said: "Mississippi has been No. 1 in tree farms throughout the nation since 1955."

An exquisite pencil sketch of the Friendship Oak Tree was unveiled and received resounding applause. The sketch by local artist, Nadine Stamm, will be reproduced on note paper, commissioned by the chapter.

Florence Duffie, a 1986 candidate for the Americanism Medal was introduced. She modeled a Panamanian costume called the 'Pollera' and said these elaborate costumes are entirely handmade, requiring about a dozen yards of cloth, many yards of handmade bobbin lace, and folk art embroidery embellishes the garment. The costumes require about a year's time in the making and cost about $1,000.

Sister Helene was recognized and received a beautifully worded proclamation signed by His Honor, Victor Frankiewicz, Jr., mayor of Bay St. Louis and expressing appreciation of the work she is doing toward the adult education program. Sister Helene graciously answered the many questions asked by group members about her work.

Regent Shirley Davenport led the DAR rituals and announced the May meeting would include installation of newly elected officers and would be held on Saturday, May 10 at 2:00 p.m. beneath the boughs of the Friendship Oak located on Gulfpark Campus, Long Beach.

The social hour included a smorgasbord served from the banquet table which was overlaid with the well-known Army-Navy cloth. Mrs. Duffie laded punch while Miss Van Pelt assisted with food services. A floral arrangement of sweetpeas and side tables of roses and azaleas were sent through the courtesy of Mrs. Richard Thames and Mrs. Charles Breath Jr.

In the patio Regent Davenport served the traditional birthday cake assisted by cohostesses Pilet and Mrs. James Young. Regent Davenport said: "This has been a beautiful and meaningful birthday party and our chapter is grateful to many persons who have received our objectives so warmly. We are a patriotic organization and our programs stress national defense, conservation and education. Our membership is open to anyone whose ancestors furthered the cause of the American Revolution."

Legion Post and Unit No. 139

The dawn of Spring brings new life for the year. What better month than April is there to celebrate Children and Youth Month?

In 1939 the American Legion moved its celebration to join the American Legion Auxiliary for a joint recognition of April as Children and Youth Month.

It has proved to be a partnership of special significance for both organizations. Unmatched is the effort to secure a square deal for every child. American Legion Post 139 in Bay St. Louis has sponsored a Boy Scout Troop continuously for the past 55 years since 1931.

They have also sponsored other scouting programs such as Cubs, Brownies, Girl Scouts, etc. Many members have spent many volunteer hours at meetings, camping and on trips.

Every year the auxiliary unit gives $1,000 in scholarships to children of veterans. The post gives a total of $3,000 in scholarships.

Together Post and Unit 139 sponsor a very successful Boys State and Girl State program. The Oratorical Contest is another youth program sponsored by Post 139 for high school students.

The auxiliary sponsors an Americanism Essay Contest for the children in grades six through 12. They are divided into two classes and the winner in each class is awarded a medal and a $50 bond.

They also sponsor a Poppy Poster Contest which is divided into five classes. The winner in each class is awarded a $50 bond.

Last year the Post renewed its annual Kids Fishing Rodeo. Every child who entered received a gift, and prizes were awarded for the largest fish. The auxiliary gave a sandwich and a drink to each child who entered a fish.

We're looking forward to a bigger and better fishing rodeo this year. The Legion has always been a big supporter of baseball. On the local level Post 139 is a large contributor to the Little League and other summer activities for children and youth.

Both the post and unit participate in Special Olympics with cash donations and volunteer workers.

The auxiliary has a special project at Harbor House, the group home for girls. The post and unit together helped sponsor a Christmas party for the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center in Long Beach.

There are many other group and individual children and youth programs supported or assisted by the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary. They are too numerous or personal to mention.

Remember when you hear the name American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary, you'll know that we care and share what we have with the children and youth of Hancock County.

Since 1926 the American Legion, Auxiliary, and affiliates have given countless hours and just over $500 million. This is dedication.

Submitted for American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 and American Legion Post 139 by Lou Wilkerson.
